

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

THIS IS THE MONTH
To give Canada.
To get the corn started.
To cut and burn the fence row weeds.
To clean the roof gutters of accumulations of dirt and leaves.
To fasten your eyes on the gorgeous colors of autumn foliage.
To watch the price of eggs mount, and feed the poultry in laying.
To stop every draft in the house and guard against colds and coughs.
To gather a good supply of garden soil for use in window gardens and starting boxes before the ground freezes.
To see that the seed corn is thoroughly dry before hard frosts set in. Make sure you have plenty—don't guess.
To feed the young poultry heavily. Proper care this month will do a lot to bring a big egg yield in December.
To get all the corn fodder under cover, where it can be fed conveniently. One of the shrewd winter jobs is hauling fodder every few days from the field.
To begin to make friends with the birds. A little regular feeding will make a real bird haven, and many can be coaxed to stay with you through the winter.—Farm Life.

TIPS OF SOME USE IN CURRING CERTAIN PESTS
Toms have been reported to aid in curbing the numbers of injurious insects.

Baker's Cocoa
is the ideal drink for growing children

Not only does its delicious flavor and aroma appeal to the palate but it supplies the body with a considerable amount of pure, wholesome and nutritious food.

Children, owing to their almost constant activity, frequently require as large a quantity of nourishment as adults, and good cocoa is a valuable aid in the carefully arranged diet. But in quality must be good and pure cocoa can, quite as well meet the requirements of children, physicians, nurses or housekeeper as "Baker's".

and other similar pests. To ascertain the facts in the case, the biological survey of the United States department of agriculture has analyzed the contents of the stomachs of 503 common toads, and reports that while the findings regarding the choice of food are of interest they thus far fail to demonstrate that toads are of great economic importance. Toads go constantly about their own work of gaining a livelihood, and so undoubtedly all their proper place in nature. They are never very numerous in one locality, however, and as they cannot adopt the methods of birds and traverse wide stretches of land to aid in combating abnormal local increase of crop and garden pests their influence is not strongly felt. The investigation shows that a certain portion of the toad's food is made up of injurious insects and other pests of growing plants, and that the toad performs some service in such places as greenhouses, gardens, fields of small grain and golf courses. Any harm that toads do in the consumption of beneficial beetles and other insects useful to crops is of little economic importance and does not warrant their indiscriminate destruction.

BEST METHOD FOR STORING CABBAGE
One of the best and cheapest ways to store cabbage for use or for sale during the winter is in pits easily and simply made. Select a naturally well-drained spot, preferably in sandy soil. Dig a pit about one foot deep, three feet wide and as long as necessary. Place in this pit a bottom and side lining of four to six inches of dry, well-packed forest leaves. When the weather becomes cold, usually about the 15th of November, pull the cabbages and, with the roots attached, set them into the pits with the heads resting on the leaves or hay. Put in three or four cabbages abreast and two or three on top of the first layer. This forms a pyramid-shaped heap. Now pile over all about four inches of hay, straw or leaves tightly packed with just enough soil to keep this material from blowing away.

As the weather becomes colder and just before the ground freezes up permanently, put on another layer of leaves, hay or straw, with soil or boards to hold this material in place. If the cabbage is to be removed gradually during the winter, one end of the pit must be packed with leaves or straw. This can be removed and replaced again on the warmer days of mid-winter.

GIVE THE COW A CHANCE.
SAYS COUNTY AGENT
Give the cow a chance, if you want her to give milk. With the coming of cold weather the dairy herd requires more attention in the way of housing and feeds. And it's about time now, the county agent says, to keep the herd in the barn and feed for maximum milk production. It is all right to allow dairy animals out for an hour or so at noon to exercise, but it is poor practice to allow them to forage in pasture, picking up chilled grasses, apples or corn butts.

The regular winter feed should now be in order. A good, high protein grain ration, with clover hay and corn silage, should be fed, if possible. Then cut straw or corn fodder should be fed, just as wet corn stalks or chaffed wheat for breakfast—as a filler, but not as a main diet.

FIG SURVEY TO COVER THE WHOLE COUNTRY
The second annual pig survey, cards for which are now being distributed to rural mail carriers, will cover the entire country, the United States department of agriculture has announced. The survey last spring covered only states, but as an indication of present and probable pig production the survey was a great success and readily demonstrated the feasibility of extending the scope of the inquiry, says the department. The survey will be distributed by each rural mail carrier on agricultural routes. Approximately 50,000 cards will be sent out. They have been prepared in simple form and can be filled out in a few minutes. Where possible, the mail carriers will fill in the answers as made by the hog raisers. The cards will show the number of sows farrowed during the last six months of 1921, the number farrowed during the first six months of 1922, the number of sows farrowed or due to farrow during the last six months of 1922, and the number bred or intended to be bred to farrow during the first six months of 1923. Numbers of hogs which died from hog cholera or other diseases during 1921 and 1922 will be shown, as well as the number of pigs moved per litter.

THE IMPORTANCE OF THIS SURVEY TO THE FARMERS in enabling them to adjust their production to the probable needs of the market is stressed by the department. People who deal in crops and livestock, such as packers and commission men, have very extensive organizations for forming themselves of the production of crops and livestock, the department points out. "Farmers have no such organization of their own, and obviously information of this character is just as important to the farmer as to the people who deal in farm products. One of the functions of government is to gather and publish these necessary statistics in order that the producers may have some knowledge of what is going on in the way of production."

At the First Congressional church Sunday morning, Rev. H. W. Tillaght will preach the third sermon of the series "A Living Faith." The subject will be, "What's Wrong With the World? Will the New Theology Right the Wrong?" The subject for the Christian Endeavor service at seven o'clock will be "The Meaning of Church Membership," the leader, A. W. Buchanan.

An evening of wholesome merriment afforded Thursday night at the church parlors when the Christian Endeavor society held a Backwards social. Many of those attending wore their colorful backward hats. In a spelling match the words were required to be spelled backwards and jumbled names of nearby villages were used as the basis of participation. There was also a musical program and a lunch of cocoa and cookies. The committee in charge were Mrs. W. R. Davoll, Mrs. Harold James, Miss Amy Hawkins, William Storrs.

For several months it has been the plan of the Library association to present a play by Mrs. Kate Douglas Wiggin, "The Old Peabody Farm," the Center church being an almost ideal setting for the drama. As the preliminary arrangements were being made, it was learned that the play was soon to be presented at Storrs by the Ladies Circle of that church. The Storrs women were then invited to repeat the play here, members of Echo Grand Lodge generously offered to return the favor at Storrs is desired. It has been arranged that the play be given here, thus affording the people of this vicinity the opportunity to see an unusually fine production given by the women of the college faculty, and also to aid in the support of the town library, the proceeds to be divided between the church at Storrs and the Mansfield library.

The Ladies Aid will meet on Wednesday afternoon at the parsonage. Surprising Blackberries is the topic for the next meeting of the Young People's club, which is scheduled for Wednesday evening of next week. Jesse Inman is chairman.

Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Stephens of Colchester have been spending a few days in their new home, the residence of E. W. Brooks.
